The final frontier, of accountability.

TEFLONRABBIT ARTICLE No.352

Unique Identifier:162e4144-bef2-444f-a0b2-63b378604171

Whatever you do, don't look up.

Wednesday, November 12, 2025 - 13:51

PDF Version
Aroma
Image not found or type unknown
99
Rumness
Image not found or type unknown
99
Subscription Only
Off
£
2999

Why would the World Health Organisation sign off on a crazy plan to isolate everyone in their houses? Does it have anything to do with the StarLink and 5G backbone launch? The answer to both these questions plays into some profoundly significant ramifications.

Corruption Intelligence Military Industrial Complex Britain Secret Space Fleet Politics Exo-politics Social Engineering History Mystery Technology

Within the derangement of belief systems which have literally been practised by humans for millions of years, there remains values which we recognise. One of the most tangible is the concept of competition. Unfortunately the insanity that is an unavoidable and inexorable by-product of the fractured cult mindset contaminates the most simple of competitive models. In a previous TEFLONRABBIT analogy, Mr. X plays proxy noughts and crosses with his neighbours in order to create a negative perception of some kind. He then markets this negative perception to a specific part of the clandestine community. Within the psychologically stunted morass represented by the intelligence agencies and the secret societies, there will be a specific group of malevolent scum that have a vested interest in information pertaining to some part of the governmental, municipal or societal infrastructure.

These groups then target the players of noughts and crosses according to the negative perception implied by Mr. X. Due to the fact that they are all profoundly mind controlled using RF technology, their concepts of rationale do not exist. In place of a valid judgement framework, they use a series of delusions of reference to symbolise abstract concepts. It is an entirely psychopathic methodology which invariably results in either abject failure or a very low calibre output. This is why the so called 'terror' paradigm has failed and called the entire concept of MIC lead congressional policy into question. This lead to the surge by the big pharma / healthcare factions who represent a re-branding for the MIC. The overall method is underpinned by MI who-the-fuck-ever and of course, the secret societies. To the point where it has been described by several other tech entrepreneurs as:

> A satanic global surveillance paradigm owned and operated by British Signals Intelligence

The PNAC arm of the MIC failed before the Covid psyop. They promised a hundred years of sustainable growth through the auspices of the five eyes intelligence network. These arrogant scum believe that they are 'educating the governments in the nature of reality'. The truth is actually the exact opposite of this proffered altruism. The nature of reality is much more simple than any military mind will ever concede. Humans relationship with our most prominent celestial neighbours defines everything about our reality. This was well understood in antiquity and explains why we still as a species place value in interpretation of celestial movements. However this really doesn't suit the MIC because they can't control it. All they can do is control humanities interpretation of it, which is precisely what they are seeking to do.

It's no coincidence that one of the main results from the Covid psyop was mass incarceration in some form of global house arrest psychology. This occurred at the exact same time that Elon Musk and SpaceX were launching their multi constellation of StarLink satellites. Several years before, John Lenard Walson released a series of stills and videos which clearly depict substantial extra terrestrial platforms in a super lunar orbit. In other words, massive spaceships further away than the moon. This was backed up by an email from Kennedy Space Center which (while marked secret) clearly states that these vehicles are the responsibility of Johnson Space Center because they're the ones that are equipped for large and elaborate spacecraft dealing with human space flight. This is quite a major revelation and most people will simply dismiss it as conspiracy mumbo jumbo. However, the UK military thought it was important enough to repeatedly harass John Lenard Walson with Chinook and Apache flybys.

Pravda printed an article in the early 2000's which asserted that the technology to read peoples minds from space not only existed but was blatantly being used at the time of writing. Many previous articles detail the practice of controlling peoples minds using RF technology. These millimetre waves can be readily transmitted from an aerial platform. In fact for the purposes of accurate targeting, it's far superior than terrestrial based alternatives. It only requires a two percent fluctuation in background ambient energy levels to tip the average human mind in one direction or the other. This is readily achievable using millimetre wave transmitters such as magnetrons. The common household product of a microwave literally uses the same technology to heat up your custard, Mount it in a satellite platform, connect it to a PCM fractal based codex and firmware and you have essentially the ability to program the minds of humans anywhere on Earth at any time of day or night. Something which has traditionally scared congress and central government, but which is extremely attractive to the MIC.

However Elon isn't part of the MIC. He's a tech entrepreneur who is apparently heavily involved with companies like Vanguard and Blackrock. Whichever secret societies he's involved with, they're sponsoring his bizarre Mars hype for some reason. The reality is that humans will never colonise Mars because there isn't any point. They may well attempt some form of gigantic con and persuade a bunch of people to live in tunnels under the tundra and arctic desert of Greenland. They will believe they are the latter day Martians and will worship Elon as their guru. This represents a major confidence trick. If he can pull it off, he will have proven that he can control and influence the belief structures of millions of people. This qualifies as a demonstration of power. The cult believe that if you can prove that you can influence people and control their belief structure in some tangible way, then you are entitled to profit from them in whichever way you please, just so long as you generate revenue.

Monetising thousands of deceived people living in a tunnel system in Greenland, Mars or anywhere at all really, is not the most obvious of challenges. However employing the insanity of clandestine community is all that is required to do so. Given that the MIC now have supra lunar orbit, they effectively have permanent, geostationary platforms. This means they completely own the entire sky of the planet. However, they need to rely on HAARP in order to detect subterranean infrastructure to a depth of approx 30 metres and the oceans represent additional barriers. Were someone to desire as much shielding as possible, a tunnel several hundred metres beneath the floor of the Marianas Trench or other deep sea location, would probably represent a distinct barrier in terms of aerial platform millimetre wave mind control. However the disparity between those isolated beneath the realm of Poseidon and those upstairs on terra firma would be too great to capitalise on. While it would certainly represent security, it would not represent much value in terms of intelligence.

The disparity is the profit. In terms of belief and perception management, such a disparity is highly valuable. Children receiving video conferencing lessons in agriculture from a person they believe to be in a poly-tunnel beneath the surface of Mars will be sure to enthuse about life in space. They may well pursue a career in science and engineering. Just as those who watched lessons from an Exide sponsored, b&w infomercial in the late 60's and early 70's were inspired into believing in a near future of space colonisation. Two decades previously, their parents were inspired by the promise of an atomic age of free and abundant energy which would allow us to colonise the solar system and beyond. It's a fantastic racket and the MIC seem content to allow commercial interests to fly as close to the sun as they like. Meanwhile they leap centuries ahead of consumer technological awareness and development.

The cult uses a staggered system for it's technological dissemination. Think Philip J Corso in a time delayed vault. He has all the info acquired from Thomas Townsend Brown regarding electric aerofoils, Viktor Schauberger's advances in kinetic vortices and a working prototype of a Higgs Boson state generator. The potential combined output of these fringe development fields is frankly unimaginable. Revolutionising mass transport would be one of the first small steps that such fundamental technology convergence would take. Along the way various spin offs would emerge including transportation in other regions including underwater and in space.

The value in the human race going from worrying about gas prices to planning a trip to Alpha Centauri or the Sargasso Sea in a couple of decades is (according to the insanity of the cult) so utterly and inconceivably low, that they would sooner be flayed alive than even consider it. What Joseph Stalin and the CCCP achieved in twenty five years represents an utter disaster for the cult that sponsored the Czarist regime. The summit between Gorbachev and Reagan apparently precipitated the fall of the Berlin wall and the end of the Belinni that was the Cold War racket. By most accounts it was a technological reveal and it fairly knocked the wind out of Gorbachevs solar sails. While it's possible that it was simply a reveal within the traditionally contested fields of war prep and space dominance, there does seem to be a lot of evidence that RF based mind control formed part of this reveal.

What we are told about Russia isolating its border with Balkanised states is somewhat counter intuitive. What we are told about the Woodpecker is even less orthodox. An alternative interpretation which makes much more sense is that post WW2, the Russians allowed the USA to have the prized weaponry from the Nazis for a price. That price was undoubtedly far reaching and would not be limited in terms of material gain. The minds of humans and the thoughts that they do not communicate represent a resource that the secret societies plunder ruthlessly. One way to secure a group of humans, their minds and their thoughts is to prevent them being scanned using MAS-INT radio frequency protocols. The most probable reality is that the Woodpecker was basically a giant jamming array that protected the minds of the Russians and Balkan states from ELF and millimetre waves for thirty years.

There is an fringe opinion held by some refuseniks in Russia that Perestroyka blatantly delivered the country into the hands of gangsters and prostitutes. Most would consider the end of the failed communist experiment to represent progress for the population. but how many consider that since 1989 they have (yet again) been predated upon by an international cult of near space faring, mind control addicted, perception management fixated goons. It's a challenging reality but one which is unavoidably welded into the daily lives of every citizen of the Russian federation and their Balkan neighbours.

The predatory and insidious methods which the Romanovs both practised and protected are certainly part of the cult methodology. They and their various Czarist predecessors were all members of the cult in the same way that the Merovingian dynasties were (and still are). The European monarchical system has been around for a very, very long time and they're not in the habit of giving it up without some serious deception and retention of value. This generally takes the shape of massive societal revisionism, which we're aggressively accelerating into right now - and have been since 2018.

The revision event has been deemed necessary by the globalist secret societies. They've even made some fairly blatant signals to the effect of what they plan to do next. This is an inherent part of their cult methodology and MIC lost control of so many narratives thanks to the release of the TCP/IP protocol that they're going to have to wipe it all down and start again. It's by no means the first time this has happened to the human race. The evidence of previous paradigm revisions is extensive. It does however, require some pragmatic interpretation. This is not helped by social media influencers talking a load of utter rubbish about flat earth, lost Tartarian / American Empires and the mud flood. So totally bogus are these narratives that they can only have come about as a result of deliberate disinformation. Seeded into the popular consciousness by the intelligence community for the purposes of degrading confidence in whistle blower narratives. Because proponents of the aforementioned subjects probably agree that much of our history is a lie, anyone else who holds this view is easily labelled as a crank that believes in conspiracy garbage.

The spurious narratives that speak to a hidden civilisation in antiquity exist for a single reason. To obscure the truth about the many technologically advanced civilisations that have existed throughout antiquity and in fact, the entire history of our species. The evidence supporting this statement has been detailed numerous times on the pages of TEFLONRABBIT.COM and a cursory browsing of articles will soon provide a wealth of links to verifiable sources. Basically extreme archaeologists such as Klaus & Cremo et al are not full of shit, but actually right on the money.

Hacks such as von Däniken and Hawass are blatant secret society members acting as gate keepers and limited hang out vendors. Their backgrounds can be easily linked to secret societies who have been proven to have engaged in extensive revisionism. Conversely the new wave of internet enabled extreme archaeologists and anthropologists have taken up the mantle of the new enlightenment. From the establishment friendly Pre History Guys to controversial outliers such as Jimmy Versetti, Robert Sepehr and Anyextee to fastidious analysts like Ben Van Kerkwyk or Blacket & Wilson.

Many of such researchers have already collaborated with their peers to drive their understanding. Occasionally more prominent media hosts such as Joe Rogan, Peers Morgan or even Tucker Carlson cash in on the zeal of the internet enabled researchers and host them on their shows. From here it is disseminated out into the mainstream where it may or may not be picked up by any of the population who have not yet been made aware of the secret society control over perceived reality. These people are susceptible to targeting by the secret societies because prior to receiving this type of information they will have accepted the stock bullshit narratives which liberally pepper our reality. As such they have been monetised and crafty secret society members care very much about materialism, specifically monetary value. They do (in every conceivable interpretation) worship Mammon.

The old gods - note the small g as we're not talking about the creator (if they even exist) but instead the many interpretations of highly sophisticated technological races which have interacted with our current human epoch. This is literally the only way to describe these entities without lapsing into mythos and hocus pocus. While the continent sized dog beast Fenrir may not have been an actual physical reality, Thor, Odin, Freya and their counterparts in the Greek Pantheon such as Apollo, Zeus and Aphrodite probably were. Beyond that they were worshipped by what was essentially a series of cargo cults. These various tribes were sponsored by a specific god, built totems to them and awaited their return with much anticipation. Exactly as uncontacted tribes did in the early 20th century.

The duration that these vain, elitist cultures interacted with our current epoch varied. What we have been left with is a clear understanding that they were never supposed to interact with us at all. Unfortunately that ship sailed, or launched or negated gravity or something many, many years ago. Furthermore some of these meddling 'little g' gods entrusted some of their technology to various tribes. This was a minimal amount of physical technology and much more by way of conceptual dissemination. Logically were you to break a no contact rule for the purposes of profiteering, accountability is an issue. Leaving evidence of this contact lying round for anyone to see would kind of let the cat out of the bag.

Several previous articles have gone into detail on the subject of the Ark of the Covenant and what exactly it represented. Suffice to say that it's probably some of the inconvenient evidence mentioned above. The gate keepers will invoke the most preposterous of narratives to divert from the simple reality that the ark was one of several multi-functional energetic devices that were left in the care of a bunch of contemporary janitors.

The most likely candidates to have been in receipt of these devices were the most prominent religious orders of the time. The Vatican emerged from the most prominent Roman temples which would probably have been lead by elders of the Jupiter temple. This would be the most likely source of their dissemination. In India the Jagannath Puri Temple hosts a statue which is known to hold the 'Heart of Krishna'. It's probably the same thing, but it hasn't ever left the Pagan tribe that it was originally disseminated to - most of the other definitely have.

What the Knights Templar & Co found in the Holy Mount in Jerusalem was quite clearly also an Ark. Whether it was the same one disseminated to the Jews by the Heretic, is unclear. It may well have been, which would explain the relationship between the Freemasons and Zionism. These devices have been behind every major religion that the human race has ever followed. Unfortunately the Knights of the 12th century were a bunch of highly divisive, misogynist, predatory gay, devil worshipping misers. Possession of the device granted them the rights of a superpower so they capitalised on it for two centuries before using their 'right to rebrand' option. Blatantly hiding all their money in the creation of Switzerland and becoming 'the Freemasons' everywhere else. This is the most recent acquisition and merger which underpins our current global malaise.

At some point, possession of these devices has facilitated some rapid technological evolution. This has progressed to a point where powered flight and even leaving the Earths atmosphere has become a reality for the recipients of the device dissemination. but therein lies the problem. Many of these preceding groups already have a presence off world and they have enjoyed the tactical advantage for many, many years. The window display charter of the international treaty on non weaponisation of space is highly unlikely to have ever been observed in any meaningful way.

The deliberate and military facilitated explosions of half a dozen warheads in our part of the solar system in 1962 started with Operation Starfish Prime. Given that there were clearly platforms in a permanent orbit in 1952, it seems that these detonations were conceivably an aggressive act of warfare against an opponent with a more established presence. The idea that our current epoch of humanity is warlike and uncontrollable appears valid when viewed through this lens. Nonetheless, that's our responsibility and it isn't for some shower of vain elitist scum to be disenfranchising the entire human population because of their egregious paranoia.