In the spirit of modernity, TEFLONRABBIT has been interrogating Ai about the clandestine activity conducted against civilians by the military. Not some foreign aggressor with a penchant for insidious evil, but citizens of the realm, licensed by the same government voted for by their victims.

Secret Societies Mind Control Remote Electroencephalography Gangstalking Psychology Police Military Industrial Complex Courts Crime Spying Corruption

It's impossible to comprehend the introductory statement without accepting that the government are openly waging war on the population. Their facile attempts to keep it secret result in many, many deaths every year. Furthermore huge swathes of the population are at all times, completely under the cosh of blackmail threats.

The people blackmailing them don't receive a salary from the civil service. Instead they acquire the equivalent value of thirty pieces of silver, per annum. Like all ->pyramid<- schemes, they only make more money when they have moved up a tier. The exact same HR method as used by every single organised criminal syndicate in the known universe. Including those half blind servants of satan currently in a supra lunar orbit and cobalt jumpsuits.

Note, the irony of the cobalt jumpsuit being that some of the systems they use still run on 'Cobol' which was popularised by the US Navy circa 1952. Contemporary compliance is clearly considered a dirty concept in certain lofty circles.. or orbits.

Back to the subject of exactly why these miscreant scum decided to use the Covid19 psyop to launch their vicious assault on the rest of society. Basically having everyone cooped up in their houses was a gravy train. Apart from Elon's crazy shit in the sky, much of which was undoubtedly SpaceX's military contracts, there was a lot of societal change afoot. The 5G roll-out was heavily questioned by science advocate as representing a blatant disregard for safety. The previous 2.4ghz feeding frenzy used a certain amount of energy to complete and maintain the connection with the subscriber. Different phones use differing levels of power, but are all approximately within the same frequency range. 5G on the other hand is a much greater amount of modulation to carry a correspondingly greater amount of data the frequency range is higher, but the range is lower. This requires more masts per square kilometre and more than double the amount of electricity to modulate the wave-forms to carry the larger digital packets.

Wireless technology has been proven numerous times in peer reviewed publications to damage organic life. The damage being done to cellphone users is only regulated by the manufacturer companies themselves. Obviously they test in line with their financial goals not any ethical constraints. What all this means is that if some morally bankrupt secret society owns enough politicians, they can use the cellphone networks to conduct their mind control operations. Mostly they target unwitting civilians who literally can't understand what is happening and assume that these thoughts originated in their own mind.

Obviously ChatGPT, Grok et al do not recognise this situation as being real. Despite being challenged with chapter and verse legislature which in Britain is covered by RIPA 2000. With some persuasion, these automated data butlers will spew out some interesting information. The author was aware that the number of so called 'agencies' in the UK was high. However he was thinking in the high double figures or maybe low triple figures. There are more than six hundred militarised government agencies in Britain. The population of approx 75 million are being mercilessly worked over buy these agencies on an hourly basis.

The mechanism used to be dependent on the five eyes network, which insists that the spying be done by foreigners in other English speaking remnants of the Empire. Since approx 2015, a bunch of low level blackmail victims with SIG-INT capable antennas have been eavesdropping on their domestic and corporate neighbours. While this may not be particularly revelatory info, the horrific fact is that they are not only eavesdropping audio. They are also picking up the low level noise generated by the human neurological system.

Many articles on TEFLONRABBIT go into great detail as to exactly how this is achieved. For the sake of brevity, it's comparable with computer wifi networks and the PCM technology behind the digital audio revolution in the late 80's. It turns out that the human system is quite a sophisticated routing device and can be used to move information around without the user knowing about it. Hence why the 'social distancing' two metre policy came into effect in 2019. The five eyes network faced an incursion of local surveillance, much of which was an attempt to disrupt the existing market.

This translated into a whole bunch of foreign and domestic spies in Britain running around with flat panel antennas listening in on the thoughts of British citizens all the way through the pandemic. It had been happening before, but not quite so brazenly. As to why the chose the pandemic to raise their scabby little heads above the parapet, that relates to the precise nature of their market disruption.

According to many of the TI's seen on social media, their thoughts are being read by people sitting in cars, lurking or walking past with expensive isolating earphones on. Further chatter speaks to the use of stimulants in order to heighten perception during the eavesdropping. The author has had the questionable delight of spotting these people in public. Thanks to his years of public order experience, it's not difficult. The reality is that a very small percentage of these people are actually listening in on the original frequencies that the target leaks from the base of their neck and other joints when the information of a decision making process is traversing their neuro system. make a decision. Those who are actually listening are using some form of amphetamine based compound. Possibly Dexadrine or a brand like Ritalin. A previous article detailed the usage of stimulants by attached handlers used by central government to effective puppet their targets around like a psychologically remote controlled drone.

However the clandestine method relies very heavily on perception management. Therefore the value in making people believe that someone in the street is listening to their thoughts is quite high. Hence why TEFLONRABBIT.COM is here telling everyone so that these idiots can't use it to intimidate anyone. The number of people who have believed that an expensive pair of lossless and isolated headphones with clips to keep the earbuds in place is a sign of authority, seriously needs to get their head out of their ass.

To explain the method involved here requires that the reader have dabbled with pharmacology. Basically anyone who has taken stimulants or barbiturates will understand that your emotional state can be radically altered depending on the pharmacology in play. Any stimulant which is being used to heighten sensitivity to the frequencies of the mind, will also place the user in a heightened state of emotional vulnerability. This makes them susceptible to real time mind control, which is something practised in public order roles and also sales.

To cut to the chase, the author was being relentlessly gang-stalked by these half baked twats so he decided to test their method. Working in security exposes an individual to the concepts used in 'Bushido'. Basically intimidating your opponent by using specific body language signals. Many are interpreted subconsciously and could never be termed as 'intimidating' but are highly effective nonetheless. With practice, the exponent can literally stop people dead in their tracks and disrupt their psychological equilibrium on such a profound level that they are completely and utterly discombobulated. It sounds like ridiculous woo-woo but it's totally real and there's nothing quite like having someone about to smash a glass in your face to make you consider that these methods may hold value.

During a constitutional stroll (mostly to escape from the low rent, mind controlled, gender confused, state sponsored & blackmailed spies in the shared accommodation) the author was once again cast into some conspicuous larp situation. This one involved yet another walk in from some useful idiot with Senheiser headphones on, acting in a bizarrely lurkish type manner. Conspicuous yet not overly threatening - just fake and really a bit awkward. Having been somewhat disgruntled with the several years of daily gang-stalking the author was about ready to dispatch some hapless larper into the next realm. Sure enough some gormless dork sidled into view with the corresponding expensive headphones on, staring at his phone while he walked directly toward the author with a view to forcing him to give way. It's some kind of petty gay dominance trip that these fools consider a military operation.

Anyway, regardless of how much this fellow thought he was in the military, he was clearly yet another Sassenach with less balls than the mother who probably turned him gay. For the record, the author has no way of knowing what the mans actual nationality was, but he looked like a larper so that's enough to disregard his human rights. With such bigotry in mind, the author shifted into a professional modus and switched on the 'Bushido' drive.

There's nothing particularly sophisticated about most of these agencies. They rely on a bunch of mindless pederast bullshit that has been sanctioned and fostered in every single British institution from hospitals to private schools. In addition, many of these institutions have allowed militarised and masonic factions to effectively victimise the public for the purposes of blackmail and extortion. To make matters worse, the prisons and military internment camps have been facilitating much more extreme mind control. Currently an ex MOD camp known as MDP Wethersfield has been highlighted for abusing the asylum seekers interred there.

These psycho mason arseholes have appointed themselves as Pharaoh and are conducting their own equivalent of the forty year experiment in the desert conducted by Akhanaten. In the little g god economy, mercilessly attacking inmates or people in comas is huge business. The pathetic little runts that make up the ranks of the British civil service and their even more pathetic counterparts in the crown services supplier industries, have all been relentlessly mind controlled by the security services, the police and numerous perverted intelligence agencies. Consequently they can't wait to do the exact same thing to anyone else. They consider it to be what their vocation is. At some point they had a massive break with reality and switched to perceiving life through the messed up template of masonry, gematria and a really shit, dumbed down form of Kabbala. This is what the British government partnering with the IDF has achieved. A nation of schizophrenic worshippers of Mammon.

In amongst all of this multi generational dysfunction is some bunch of whacked out lunatics who believe in all kinds of retarded prophecies from thousands of years ago. These people are ideologues, they will believe any retarded fake shit that is handed down to them through their unaccountable 'psyonic' network. The simple truth is that nobody with any concept of investigation procedure would ever just go with 'the emotion of a thing' rather than verifying the evidence before they commit to an interpretation, never mind action. Their psychological telemetry system was developed with completely black budget funded, heavily classified infrastructure architecture.

It's origins are in deep antiquity but the most recent mechanised iteration had a massive upgrade in the 50's. The upgrade was handled by a right bunch of psychos in British Signals Intelligence. Most of those who use the infrastructure do not consider anything like verifying evidence to hold value, they incorrectly assume that anything being communicated according to their super secret, unaccountable platform, must be verbatim and veracious. The obvious fact that absolutely anybody could be sending absolutely anything, doesn't occur to them and thus they are conned on a regular basis. Going to war on a lie is no issue for these people and when they are caught and challenged, they revert to a default coping mechanism which is invariably comparable with that of a junior school child who has just been caught stealing. They deny everything with an incredibly guilty look on their face, hide behind doors, throw tantrums to try and change the subject and basically behave like someone who has been regressed to a mental age less than seven years old.

So when a conspicuously dressed fop appeared before the author and lurked into his path, there was actually an incredibly high chance that he would be murdered where he stood and have his body dumped in the canal. Such is the authors utter hatred for these low rent, clandestine fools. To make matters so much worse, he was quite a large man but was dressed like an advert for the forthcoming reboot of Andy-Pandy goes to Town. His attempts to communicate some form of militarised livery concept failed miserably when he decided to wear a conspicuously new fishing hat like some giro intoxicated, dullard Manc with a penchant for stealing his grannies anti-psychosis medication.

Despite such boiling fury, the author somehow managed to retain his composure and used his professional training to essentially scare the shit out of this gormless fool. There was also an increased lack of tolerance for the larp play acting of a bunch of losers trying to convince the author that they had been checked out for psychological telemetry operations, which they obviously had not because they didn't have any understanding of frequency response specialist earphones. Instead like a bunch of feckless plums, they decided to use normal headphones and rely on their acting ability to see it through. They failed and the author told them to fuck off, literally hundreds of times - to their face. It was truly quite a testing time.

Enter from stage right; Mr Gormless fishing hat, who also looked a bit furtive and keen to prove himself as a convincing larper. The author had been exposed to quite extensive psychological hardening during his public order days and is quite familiar with psychological methods used in sales. Without going into a massive psychology discourse, basically it's similar to being a hypnotist. The objective is to hijack the persons consciousness and direct them according to your user requirements. Sounds simple and with practice it actually is.

Whoever Manc fishing hat was, he wasn't trained in anything remotely comparable. As such when the author approached him like an emergency release from the Hoover dam, he blanched and hurriedly sidestepped out of the way and off the pavement into the grass. During the prelude approach, the author was focused on the mans expression. Testing this so called psychological telemetry larp was becoming increasingly necessary to make it clear to these low level agencies, that this particular target is going to react in ways you will never recover from.

Needless to say, anyone that had been patched into the authors psyche at the time would have perceived something quite alarming. Such a state of mind can definitely be classified as 'killer intent' and is something that serious security professionals train to be able to detect. The methods branch into esoteric woo-woo, but do actually work and can not be rationally explained using western science. Being able to switch in and out of this profoundly operational state of mind, is what separates the average security worker, from a seasoned consultant.

Hat boy was no professional and judging by the swiftness of his conceding right of way, he wasn't listening in to the authors thoughts. He was very keen to look like he was, but failed miserably because nobody with any training would ever detect that level of killer intent and not react in a defensive way, it's impossible. However, there are the occasional operatives who aren't larping. Their pupils are generally dilated and their eyes opened wider than normal. They will stare with intensity at their targets despite clearly telegraphing their business. These people are indeed in an altered state of consciousness and generally have spent at least a couple of hundred pounds on hi-fidelity, wired, in ear headphones. They are listening to frequencies generated by the human neurological system which allow them to sync their brainwaves to the target. This is where the pharmacology makes a difference.

What these half baked dorks seem to have omitted from their business plan, is the fact that anyone who can spot them and knows how to physically intimidate people will be able to literally freak the shit out of them, because they're loaded with amphetamines. Their stimulus limit prior to an adrenaline release is much lower than it should be for someone placing themselves in potential physical danger. There are drugs which can help in a fight, but psychoactive stimulants are generally a bad idea because of the way it impedes your judgement. Cocaine probably doesn't cut it when it comes to syncing to someone else's brainwaves. Shame, it's awesome for fighting.

Anyway, hat boy balked, his bottle crashed, his larp folded and basically he lost in some dumb race that had been put together by some stupid clown earlier in the day, week or month. Needless to say the author simply dismissed the entire debacle and went about his business of trying not to assault any larpers that day. Something which is still a major effort in his daily life. Since the pandemic, the snide little runts have been empowered and also had a fire lit underneath them. This is why the author has been righteously putting them to the sword for the past decade or so. These people are utter bullshitters and nobody should ever tolerate their snide mentality.

For the record, the author has no problem with the LGB community, has worked many gay club nights, womens clothes shops and various other pride friendly events. However it has come to his attention that there is a vast disparity in play in the LGBTQ+IAA2 .... blah blah blah community. The reality of homosexuality is comparable with intersex prevalence. Literally something like 0.00001 of the population are impacted by it. All the rest of the so called 'gay community' are simply the victims of the secret societies. There's no point in dressing it up and the gay community need to stop thinking that their secret is going to survive. They failed at being heterosexuals, or at least they perceive themselves to have failed at heterosexuality and were shoved into homosexuality or face a life of celibacy, loneliness and degrading psychological health. The forced conversion invariably occurred due to the involvement of a parent. The secret societies will stop at nothing to create more deviancy to earn their Judas fund payments. Forcing women to turn their sons into homosexuals is no problem for the most deranged of secret society members or their philosophical progenitors. Many of them are profoundly misogynistic because they were targeted by their own mothers or wives. So on the chain of fundamentally dysfunctional bullshit continues.

The end result being a nation that once controlled twenty five percent of the planet, is now merely a training camp for psychological terrorism which is then exported to the rest of the 192 countries in the WHO pact. An international alliance of profoundly corrupt civil servants and their commercial partners waging less lethal warfare on civilians. Purely for the purposes of extortion and blackmail and predominantly funded, licensed and facilitated by the state and their commercial partners. Organisations such as the Corporation of London, the Federal Reserve and the Bank of England all lead back to a group of families that now apparently hold the majority of the planets wealth. The banking dynasties have been acting as the money launderers and payhouses for this deranged cult of corruption for decades.

According to numerous prophecies, there is a massive loss of life just over the horizon. The psychopath Rosicrucians told everyone twenty plus years ago by erecting a giant mystery standing stone enclosure with their plans printed in numerous different languages. The WHO countries populations have inexorably acquiesced to the insane gender proselytism that has been spewing out of their smartphones next to their heads, while they sleep. The aerial constellations of mind control capable satellites have been augmented once more. Since the British (allegedly) installed the so called 'Merkaba constellation' in the late 1950's, they have had a monopoly which they have monetised relentlessly. JFK's administration tried to knock a hole in their coverage through the auspices of 'Operation Starfish Prime' but it couldn't last forever. Cue Elon's crazy shit in the sky which operates at a lower altitude and therefore does not have the high ground, but is in a perfect situation for intercepts and jamming.

Every time a new technology is disseminated by the military it creates several decades of intelligence exclusivity. Some is actually technical and some is merely signalling so that other technologies which are more secret, can be used to create a con of effective surveillance. Hence the stupid clowns with their faux acting of listening in on peoples thoughts. The target does indeed have someone listening in on their thoughts, but it isn't the stupid dolt trying desperately to pass it off as real. The actual eavesdropping is being conducted further away using a zero latency communication platform reliant on some form of technology that the military can never divulge. The remote eavesdropper can then use a variety of unaccountable communication methods to then provide real time information to the ground zero flunkey with the 'not nearly expensive enough' earphones on. They receive some tiny titbit of a concept through the unaccountable psyoinic telemetry network and then try to maximise on it.

The main problem with this method is that these agencies are only interested in blackmail. It has become their daily bread and butter. It doesn't matter who the target is so long as they can be effectively controlled. They may hold precisely zero commercial value, but that's not a barrier for an increasingly morally bankrupt academy of half baked criminality. This is what happens when you let a bunch of parasites in the city who claim to be 'management consultants' apply their crass ideology to psychological surveillance. It descends into what could only be described as a Satanic and malevolent hellhole of gender proselytism and pederast mentality.

Welcome to Britain.
